

THE

INDIAN EXTRADITION ACT.

ACT XV OF 1903.

[4th November, 1903.]

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Extradition and Rendition of Criminals.

- Whereas it is expedient to provide for the more convenient administration in British India of the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, and of the Fugitive 31 & 34 User, c. 52; 36 & 37 User, c. 52; 36 & 37 User, c. 60; and whereas it is also expedient to amend the 41 k 45 69. law relating to the extradition of criminals in cases to which the Extradition Acts, 1870 and 1873, do not apply;

It is hereby enacted as follows :-

The Act of 1870 has also been amended by The Extradition ct, 1895 (59 & 59 Vict., c. 33) and The Extradition Act, 1906 6 Edw. 7, c. 15), which latter includes bribery in the list of times in the First Schedule to the Act. These Acts with the let of 1873 may be cited as The Extradition Acts, 1870 be 06. Section 5 of the Act of 1873 has been amended by The Perjury Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo V, c. 6), and perjury a extradition proceedings is thereby made punishable under hat Act, see section 1 of that Act.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

- 1. (1) This Act may be called the Indian Short title, extent and Extradition Act, 1903;
- (2) It extends to the whole of British India (including British Baluchistan, the Santhal Parganas and the Pargana of Spiti); and
- (3) It shall come into force on such day as the Governor General in Conneil, by notification in the Gazette of India, may direct.

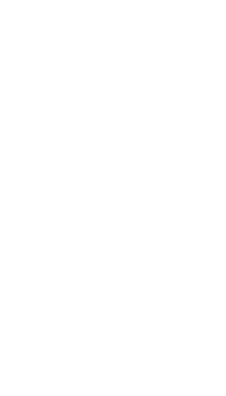

The Act has been declared to come into force from 1st June 1904 (see Gazute of Indua, 1904, Pt. 1, p. 354). The Act has been declared in force in the Angul district by section 3 of the Angul Laws Regulation, 1913, Regulation 3 of 1913 (Bihar & Orissa Code, Vol. 1, p. 863), and in the Arakan Hill district by the Arakan Hill District Laws Regulation, 1916, Regulation I of 1916 (Burma Code, Vol. 1, p. 215).

- 2. In this Act, unless there is anything repug- befindens, nant in the subject or context,—
 - (a) "European British subject" means a European British subject as defined by the Code of Criminal Procedure for the time being in force:
 - (b) "extradition offence" means any such offence as is described in the First Schedule:
 - (c) "Foreign State" means a State to which, for the time being, the Extradition 33 & 34 Acts, 1870 and 1873, apply.

 (c) "Good State of the Control of the C of the Judicial Commissioner of the Central Provinces; in other cases "High Court" means the highest Court of criminal appeal or revision for any local area, or, where no such Court is established under any law for the time heing in force, such officer as the Governor General in Council may appoint in this behalf.

- (d) "High Court" means the High Court as defined by the Code of Criminal Procedure for the time being in force:
- (e) "offence" includes any act wheresoever committed which would, if committed in British India, constitute an offence: and
- (f) "rules" include prescribed forms.
- "European British subject" [see section 4 (1) (i) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1893] means :---
- (i) any subject of His Majesty of European descent in the male line born, naturalised or domiciled in the British Islands or any Colony, or
- (ii) any subject of His Majesty who is the child or grandchild of any such person by legitimate descent.
- "Extradition offence." It is to be noticed that the definition is only applicable to Chapter III. Chapter II of the Act is incorporated in the Act of 1870, and as regards that Chapter the definition has no application. The meaning of "extradition crime" in that Chapter is that given in section 25 of The Extradition Act, 1870, i.e., a crime described in the First Schedule to that Act.
- "Foreign State." For a list of the Orders in Council applying The Extradition Acts (1870 to 1909), see Appendix B. There are extradition treaties with all the principal European Nata., except Turkey, and with most other civilized powers. As regards the possessions in India of France and Portugal, see paragraphs 5 and 7 of Part I. Nepal is not a Foreign State. Guilt Salu c. Emproy. I. L. R., 42 Cal., 793.
- "High Conrt" [see section 4(1) (j) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1824] means, in reference to proceedings against European British subjects nr persons jointly charged with European British subjects, the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras, Bombay, Allshabad, Patna, Labore and Rangoon, the Chief Courts nl Oudh and Sind and the Court

- (f) "rules" include prescribed forms.
- "European British subject" [see section 4 (/) (i) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1893] means:—
- (i) any subject of His Majesty of European descent in the male line born, naturalised or domicaled in the British Islands or any Colony, or
- (ii) any subject of His Majesty who is the child or grandchild of any such person by legitimate descent.
- "Extradition offence," It is to be noticed that the definition is only applicable to Chapter III. Chapter II of the Act is incorporated in the Act of 1870, and as regards that Chapter the definition has no application. The meaning of "extradition crime" in that Chapter is that given in section 26 of The Extradition Act, 1870, i.e., a crime described in the First Schedule to that Act.
- "Foreign State." For a list of the Orders in Council applying The Extradition Acts (1870 to 1906), see Appendix B. There are extradition treaties with all the principal European States, except Turkey, and with most other civilized powers. As regards the possessions in India of France and Fortugal, see Prayraph's 2 and 7 of Part I. Nepal is not a Foreign State. Gull. Sahu c. Emperor, I. L. R., 42 Cal., 793.

CHAPTER II.

Surrender of Fugitive Criminals in case of Foreign States.

Pequisition for surrender. 3. (1) Where a requisition is made to the Government of India or to any Local Government by the Government of any Foreign State for the surrender of a fugitive criminal of that State, who is in or who is suspected of being in British India, the Government of India or the Local Government, as the case may be, may, if it thinks fit, issue an order to any Magistrate who would have had jurisdiction to inquire into the crime if it had been an offence committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction, directing him to inquire into the case.

This Chapter has been declared to have riflect in British India as it is were part of The Extradition A.1, 1970 (33.8.34 Vict., c. 52), by an Order in Council, dated the 7th March, 1901, issued in exercise of the power conferred by section 18 of that Act, and published in the Gazette of India, 1991, 19, 1, p. 303.

The requisition need not be in any particular form, but it should be accompanied by some evidence that the person whose surrender is demanded is a fugitive ethnical of the State making the demand. It may be made by a diplomatic representative of the State asking for the surrender or by any person control to the State asking for the surrender or by any person control to the Government of India as the Consul defined. (Consul or (if the fugitive eruninal has sevape or dependency of the Foreign State on be requisition is made) as the Government of Jacobs (If action 17 (I). The Extradit

A Consul or Vice-Consul person recognised by the Go. Officer of the Foreign State (* 1873)

Ind the l "Local Government" is defined by section 3 (29) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, as "the person nuthorized by law to administer executive government in the part of British India in which the Act or Regulation containing the expression operates, and shall include a Chief Commissioner"

"A fugitive eriminal of that state" means a fugitive criminal accused or convicted of an extradition crime committed within the jurisdiction of that state (cf. section 26, The Extradition Act. 1870).

The expression may include a person convicted and sentenced for an extradition crime by a Forcign Court, who has been released before the termination of bis sentence with a liability to be called on to serve the residue of his term. The King v. The Governor of Brixton Prison, Ex parte Calberla, [1907], 2 K. B. 861

A person who is convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for an extradition crime and who breaks out of prison and escapes before the expiration of his sentence is a fugitive criminal. Exparts Moser, [1915], 2 K B, 608.

The term "convicted" does not include or refer to a conviction which under foreign law is a conviction for contumnoy, but the term "accused person" includes a person so convicted—see section 26, The Extradition Act, 1870.

The term "extradition crime" means a crime which, if enmmitted in England or within English jurisdiction, would be one of the crimes described in the First Schedule to The Extradition Act. 1870 (see section 26).

It is not essential that the fugitive should be a subject of the State which demands his extradition Unless there are treaty arrangements to the contrary, a requisition by State B for the surrender of a subject of State A who committed a crime in State B and has fied to State C is valid. Thus a naturalized subject of the United States who committed a crime in Holland was extradited from England at the instance of the Dutch Government. R. v. Ganz, (1882), 9 Q B. D. 93. See also The King v. The Governor of Brixton Prison, Exparte Wells, [1912] 2 K. B. 578

It is not even necessary that the person accused of an extradition crime should have been in the Foreign State the time the crime was committed. A resident in England who committed an extradition crime (procuring goods by false pretences) in Germany by means of letters written in England was a fugitive criminal within the meaning of the Act. R. v. Nillus, 53 L. J. (M. C.). 157. The words in the Act are "who is in "not "who has fled to" per Smith, J. Again, a person resident in England charged with obtaining goods by false pretences in Switzerland, the false pretences heing alleged to be made in Switzerland hy a partner of his and at his procuration in England, was held to he a fugitive criminal. The King v. Godfrey, [1923], 1. K. B., 24 following R. v. Nillus.

Accessories equally with principals are liable to he surrendered, see section 3, The Extradition Act, 1873

"may if it thinks fit." The words are permissive, but if the law and the treaty provisions are complied with, it seems that the order would be as of course.

"issue an order." The only Government competent to issue the order for inquiry is the Government to which the Foreign State has made the requisition. "This function must be performed strictly in accordance with the Statute and cannot be delegated" per Mookerjee, J., in In re Rudolf Stallmann, I. L. R., 39 Cal., 164, at p. 209.

In the Second Schedule to The Extradition Act, 1870, a form of order of the Secretary of State to a Police Magnetrate is provided, and section 20 of the Act provides that nesse of a British possession these forms may be used, mutatis mutandis, and when used shall he deemed valid and sufficient in law. The Indian Act provides no special form for the order.

Government may assue the order to any Magistrate who has jurisdiction to inquire into the crime of the nature of that for which extradition is songht. In re Rudolf Stallmann, I. L. R., 39 Cal., 164.

mons or rant for

(2) The Magistrate so directed shall issue a summons or warrant for the arrest of the fugitive criminal according as the case appears to be one in which a summons or warrant would ordinarily issue.

The crime charged need not and will not probably be descrihed in the exact language of the Indian Penal Code. In determining whether a summons or a warrant will issue, the Magistrate should consider the facts before him and act accordingly, having regard to the provisions of Schedule II to the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

(3) When such criminal appears or is hrought leaving hefore the Magistrate, the Magistrate shall inquire Magistriot the case in the same manner and have the same jurisdiction and powers, as nearly as may he, as if the case were one triable by the Court of Session or High Court, and shall take such evidence as may he produced in support of the requisition and on hehalf of the fugitive criminal, including any evidence to show that the crime of which such criminal is accused or alleged to have heen convicted is an offence of a political character or is not an extradition crime.

"in the same manner and have the same jurisdiction and powers, as nearly as may be, as if the case were one triable by the Court of Session or High Court."

Chapter XVIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, lays down the procedure to be followed on inquiry into cases triable by the Court of Session or Higb Court.

There are of course distinctions of procedure which are required by the Acts themselves which are covered by the words "as nearly as may be", e.g., the power of Government to stay proceedings under section 5 (2) of this Act, the putting in of depositions and statements taken in a Foreign State which are made evidence by section 14 of The Extradition Act, 1870, and the like.

See also in this connection R. v. Daye, [1903], 2 K. B., 333, as to the power of the Magistrate under section 5 of The Extradition Act, 1873, to compel production of a sealed packet held by a hank upon the terms that it shall not be delivered up except with the consent of the depositors. This section must be read in conjunction with section 29 of The Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914 (4 & 5 Geo. V, c. 58). Where a Magistrate was ordered by a Secretary of State to take evidence in connection with a criminal matter them pending in the Itahan Courts, it was within the power of the Magistrate to issue a summons for the production of documents and to inspect such documents when produced, in order that he might specify such as might he relevant to the case heing investigated in the Italian Courts. The King v. Lord Mayer of Cardiff. Ex parte Lewis, [1922], 2 K. B., 777.

"such evidence as may be produced"

As extradition proceedings are not very numerous in the Courts of this country, the following remarks on the evidence to he produced may be of use.

The following documents should be placed before the Magistrate;-

- (1) A copy of the Order in Council applying the Extradition Acts in the case of the Foreign State demanding the surrender.
- (2) The foreign warrants authorising the arrest.
- A copy will suffice [R. v. Ganz, (1882), 9 Q. B. D., 93], hut in either case the warrant or topy must be authenticated as required by section 15 of the Act of 1870.
- (3) If it is sought to prove that the fugitive has already heen convicted, a certificate of, or a judicial document stating the fact of, such conviction and purporting to be certified by a Judge, Magistrate or Officer of the Foreign State where the conviction was had. Such certificate, etc., must he authoriticated as provided for hy section 15 (3) of the Act of 1870.
- (4) Any depositions or statements on oath or affirmation taken in the Foreign State, or copies thereof which must be authenticated as provided by section 15 (2) of the Act of 1870.

It was held in The King v The Governor of Brizton Prison, Ex parte Serrim, [1914], 1 K. B., 77, that proof of the Order in Council though not a legal necessity was desirable.

Documents of the kind described in items (3) and (4) will be admissible in evidence by virtue of section 14 of The Extradition Act, 1870.

The Indian Evidence Act, 1872, does not contain the whole law of evidence for this country "Section 2 of the Act saves rules of evidence contained in any Statute, Act, or Regulation in force in any part of British India.... One of such Statutes is The English Extradition Act which, as applicable to this country, is as much part of the ler form as The Evidence Act itself." Per Woodroffe, J. in In re Rudolf Stallmann, I. L. R., 39 Cal., 164, at p. 185

Subject to any special rules of evidence laid down by the Extradition Acts, the evidence must be given in accordance with the law of evidence in force in British India. It is of course necessary that the identity of the person arrested shall be established by legal evidence.

"and on behalf of the fugitive criminal"

It is the duty of the Magistrate to hear evidence tendered on hehalf of the fugitive criminal R. v Zossenheim, (1903), 20 T. L. R., 121.

If the Magistrate does not give the fugitive criminal an opportunity of defence this is not a niere irregularity but goes to the jurisdiction of the Magistrate. In re Rudolf Stallmann, L. R. 39 Cal. 164.

"of a political character"

An offence is of a political character if it is one which is incidental to, or forms part of, political disturbances, In recation, [1891], 1 Q B, 149. In this case there was a general rising against the authorities of the Canton of Ticino, and in the course of the disturbances Castion who had taken a prominent part in organizing them shot one Reni, a member of the State Council. It was held the offence was of a political character. See also the case of Caro, 1887, reported in Snow's cases on International Law, p. 161, which shows that the American view is much the same.

Anarchists, however, are not political offenders, for to constitute an offence of a political character, there must be two parties in the State, each seeking to impose the government of its own choice on the other, whereas anarchists are the enemies of all government—In re Mennier, [1891], 2 Q. B., 415.

"is not an extradition crime"

There must be an offence against the law of both countries which is substantially the same though it need not be described 1870. A form of warrant is given in Schedule II to The Extradition Act, 1870, which may be used mutatis mutandis.

"bailable under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

Sections 496 to 502 and Schedule II to the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, deaf with bail

- (6) The Magistrate shall report the result of his Magistrate's inquiry to the Government of India or the Local Government, as the case may he, and shall forward, together with such report, any written statement which the fugitive criminal may desire to suhmit for the consideration of the Government.
- (7) If the Government of India or the Local Reference to Government, as the case may be, is of opinion that if Government, such report or written statement raises an important necessary, question of law, it may make an order referring such question of law to such High Court as may be named in the order, and the fugitive criminal shall not he surrendered until such question has been decided.
- (8) If, upon receipt of such report and statement Warrant for or upon the decision of any such question, the Government of India or the Local Government, as the case may be, is of opinion that the fugitive criminal ought to be surrendered, it may issue a warrant for the custody and removal of such criminal and for his delivery at a place and to a person to be named in the warrant.
- (9) It shall he lawful for any person to whom a Lawfulness of custody warrant is directed in pursuance of suh-section (8), after thing to receive, hold in custody and convey the person ranker warrant, on the warrant, to the place named in the surrender. warrant, and, if such person escapes out of any custody to which he may he delivered in pursuance of such warrant, he may be re-taken as a person accused of an offence against the law of British India may be re-taken upon an escape.

(6) "shall report." Once the report is submitted, the Magistrate is functus officio. In re Rudolf Stallmann, I. L. R., 39 Cal., 164.

The Report of a Select Committee cannot be used for ascertaining the meaning of an enactment which must be gathered from the terms of the enactment itself [Administrator-General of Bengal v Prentlal Mullick, (1895), I L. R., 22 Cal., 788], but the above extract shows what the intention of the legislature was. The intention of the legislature does not seem however to have been effected. See In re Rudolf Stellmann, I. L. R., 39 Cal., 164, as to the power of the Chartered High Courts to consider whether a person is illegally detained under a warrant in extradition proceedings. Woodroffe, J., in that case laid down the following propositions:

i (i) that section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, clearly gives power to the High Court to inquire into the legality of the detention of n person detained under such a warrant in a Presidency-town (p. 181);

(ii) that the fact that the Indian Act does not expressly refer to habeas corpus does not exclude the existence of the right which exists antecedently of the provisions of The Extradition Act, 1870, which merely declared an already existing right and indicated the time when as a matter of procedure that right should be invoked (pp. 182—83);

(iii) section 3 of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, does not prevent proceedings under section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, (p. 184).

Stallmann's case raises the following further points :-

 Does the enactment of Chapter II of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, together with the Order in Council directing that this Chapter shall have effect in British India as if it were part of The Extradition Act, 1870 (33 & 31 Vict., c. 52), operate as a repeal of those sections of The Extradition Act, 1870, which deal with halves corpus?

Woodroffe, J. and Mookerpe, J., appear to have held in the creferred to, that it did not do so and that the power of reference provided by section 3 (?) of the Act cannot be regarded as a substitute for the right to a writ of habeas corpus. They refer to Crowley's case (1818), 2 Swans., L. Exparte Bessel, (1844), 6 Q. B., 481, and Rev. e. Illolloway Prison (Governor); In re. Siletti, (1902), 71, L. J. (K. B.), 935, in support of the contention that The Extradition Act, 1870, merely declared a right that cristed independently of the Statute.

Caspersz and Sharfuddin, JJ., in Rudolf Stallmann v. Emperor, I. L. R., 33 Cal., 547, made certain observations which are not altogether in accordance with this view when they said: "This special procedure [i.e., that provided by acction 3 () and (?) of the Act), it seems, takes the place of that indicated in section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which gives directions of the nature of a kabeas corpus."

It is perhaps worthy of notice that Crouley's case and Bessett's case are long anterior to the English statute, and that the immediate result of the latter case was that from the years 1844 to 1864 extradition between England and France hecame almost impossible—Clarke upon Extradition, pp. 134, 139.

In In re Siletti, Bigham, J., made the following remarks: "The accused in this case has the right which all persons committed by a Magistrate have of applying for a habeas corpus, The Extradition Act, 1870, does not give him that right. He has it at common law (n. 937)"

 Independently of section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, do the Chartered High Courts possess any jurisdiction to issue a writ of habeas corpus in the case of a person who is not a European British subject?

The judgment supplies no definite reply to this question which, in view of the finding as to section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, it was not necessary for the learned judges to answer. Reference may be made in this connection to In the matter of Ameer Khan, (1870), 6 B. L. R., 392, and to In the matter of Ameer Khan, (1870), 6 B. L. R., 459.

The Indian legislature appears to have adopted the view that the power of issuing a writ of habeas corpus vested in the Chartered High Courts is the same as that emhodied in section 456 and section 491 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. That is to say, that as inheritors of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts they have complete jurisdiction in the case of the Presidency-towns and jurisdiction over European British subjects elsewhere.

[The foregoing portion of this paragraph relates to the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, before it was amended by the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1923. Ou the question whether the provisions of Chapter XXXVII of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. comprise all the powers of the Chartered High Courts for the purpose of dealing with applications for a writ of hobeas corpus, see Mahomedalli Allabux v. Ismailji Abdulali, I. L. R., 50 Bom., 616.1

This raises a somewhat curious point, for in In the matter of . John Anderson, (1861), 30 L. J. (Q B.), 129, it was held that as the legislation establishing a High Court of Judicaturs for Canada had not expressly abrogated the jurisdiction in habeas corpus possessed by the Courts at Westminster, those Courts were hound to grant the writ in a suitable case. This decision led to the enactment of 25 & 26 Vict., c. 20. The Habeas Corpus Act, 1862, which lays down that no writ of habeas corpus shall issue out of any Court in England to any colony or foreign dominion of the Crown in which any Court exists having power to issue and insure the due execution of such writ throughout such colony or dominion See in this connection R. v. the Earl of Crewe, Ex parte Sekgome, [1910], 2 K. B., 576. If therefore the powers of the Chartered High Courts in India as to habeas corpus are in any way restricted, then it would appear that the Courts in England might entertain an application for such a writ in regard to extradition proceedings in this country. The practical objection of course would be that the fugitive criminal would have heen handed over long hefore such an application could be made.

It may be noted that the efforts of the German Government to secure the extradition of Rudoll Stallmann which led in this country to the cases of Rudolf Stallmann v. Emperor, I. L. R., 38 Cal., 517, and In re Rudolf Stallmann, I. L. R., 39 Cal., 164, had a sequel in the English Courts Stallmann, after his discharge in Calcutta, visited England and was there arrested and committed by the Bow Street Magistrate for extradition on the same evidence and for the same offence as in the proceedings in India. He obtained a rule niss for the issue of a writ of habras corpus, and the proceedings thereon are reported in Rer v. Governor of Brixton Preson Ex parte Stallmann, [1912], 3 K. B , 424. It was argued that, as he had been discharged in Calcutta, section 6 of The Habeas Corpus Act, 1679, prevented further proceedings On this point the Court held that section 6 of The Habeas Corpus Act, 1679, only applies when the return to the second writ of habous corpus raises for the opinion of the Court the same question with regard to the validity of the grounds of detention as the first As to the proceedings before the Calcutta High Court, Lord Alverstone, C. J., said: "Proceedings in the nature of habeas corpus took place in India, and I desire to say that I do not draw any distinction between habeas corpus proceedings in England and those in the form in which . they took place in India. I think in all probability the same law is applicable to them as to habeas corpus, at any rate so far as relates to any point we have to consider, but in the view I take of the effect of those proceedings and of the law, it is not material to consider at length whether there is or is not any distinction between them and proceedings in habeas corpus." It was further argued on hehalf of Stallmann that Article IV of the Extradition Treaty with Germany forbids aurrender if the person claimed has been "tried and discharged," but the Court held that a preliminary investigation in extradition proceedings is not included in the term "tried" It was also held that obtaining a bill of exchange for a certain sum of money by false pretences by cheating at eards was an extradition erime within The Extradition Act, 1870, and the Treaty with Germany. Accordingly, therefore, the rule was discharged.

Appeal to Privy Council. An appeal hes to the Judicial Committee of the Pnvy Council from an order of a Court, discharging a fingitive entimal in extradition proceedings on a habeas corpus. For instances of such an appeal, see Att-G. for the Colony of Hong Kong v. Kuol-A-Sing, (1873), L. R., 5 P.C., 179. R. v. Mount, (1875), L. R., 6 P.C., 283, an appeal from the Supreme Court of Victoria United States of America v Gaynor, (1900), A. C., 128, appeal by special leave from the Supreme Court of Lower Canada,

Sufficiency of evidence in proceedings before magistrate. The English and the Indian Courts are agreed in their attitude towards the findings of Magistrates in respect of evidence tendered in support of a demand for extradition. The guiding principle is that, if there is evidence and that evidence has been found sufficient by the Magistrate not to justify a conviction but to justify a trial, the Court in a proceeding for habeas corpus will not attempt to assess the value of that evidence. In Servini's case (Rex v. Governor of Brixton Prison, Ex parte Servini, [1914], 1 K. B., 77), Ridley, J., quoted with approval the following passage from R. v. Governor of Holloway Prison, Ex parte Siletti (87 L. T., 332): "Then, if he [the accused] applies for a habeas corpus and obtains a rule, the question arises what points may he taken upon the argument of the rule. For my part, I think the only question that this Court can entertain is the question of jurisdiction and applying that observation to this particular Act, all the accused person may say is that the crime with which he was charged was not a crime within the meaning of The Extradition Act-that is to sav, that it did not come within the class of offences contemplated or that it was an offence of a political character and therefore was outside the Act altogether. He may also say that there was absolutely no evidence upon which the Magistrate could exercise his discretion as to whether he would commit or not. These things he may say; hut I am clearly of opinion that there is one thing he cannot say-namely. that there is evidence one way and the other and that this Court ought to enter into the consideration as to whether the Magistrate has exercised his discretion as to it properly. That he cannot say,"

"The question for us is not as to the weight of evidence but only whether there was evidence, and speaking for myself I think there was "Per Hewart, C. J., in the King v. Godfrey, [1923], IK. B. 24, at n. 27.

"Where the evidence is such that the Magistrate is entitled to commit, this Court will not review his decision because of evidence adduced since the committal" Per Hewart, C. J., in the King v. Garernor of Eriston Prison, Exparte Perry, [1921] 1 K. B., 455, at pp 459-60.

"I have been asked to deal with the evidence upon which the Magistrate has made his report, it being said that the в. 3.]

conclusions he has arrived at ore wrong....... I do not think I can question the report he has made. It is within his rights to make such a report as he thinks justified by the evidence taken by him." Per Chaudhuri, J., in Tops v. Emperor, I. L. R., 46 Cal., 52, at p. 51.

"ought to be surrendered"

The general restrictions on surrender of criminals must be borne in mind.

(1) The surrender must be in accordance with the Treaty with the Foruga State as well as with the Extradition Acts, for the Order in Council under section 2 of the Act of 1870 embodies the Treaty in the Act. Thus when there was a provision in a treaty between England and Switzerland that no subject of the United Kingdom should be surrendered to Switzerland, a British subject could not be surrendered though otherwise the conditions required by the Act might have been complied with. The Queen w Widon, (1877), 3 Q B. D. 42.

Treaties are drawn in duplicate in the languages of the contracting powers. The version however to be examined by the Court is the English version. "We are, in my opinion, bound to take the English version of the treaty as being the authentic version which the Courts of this country must consider." Per Darling, J., in The King : The Governor of Brixton Prison. Exparte Mehaned Ben Romdon, 119121, 3 K. B., 190, at p. 190.

- (2) No surrender shall be made if the offence is one of a political character or if the Government of India or the Local Government is satisfied that the requisition has been made with a view to try or punish the fugitive for an offence of a political character—section 3(I) of The Extradition Act, 1870, read with Chapter II of the Indian Extradition Act, 1993
- (3) The law of the Foreign State or the treaty must provide that the fugitive criminal shall not, until he has been restored or had an opportunity of returning to Hiss Majesty's dominions, be detained or tried in that Foreign State for any offence committed prior to his surrender other than the extradition crime proved by the facts on which the surrender is grounded—section 3 (2) of The Extradition Act, 1870
- (4) A person under trial or undergoing sentence in British India is not to be surrendered till the termination of his trial or sentence—section 3(3) of The Extradition Act, 1870.

Corpus delicti. Most treaties contain a provision for the return of the corpus delicit as well as other articles which may be needed as proof in the Foreign State. An order to this effect should be made before the Magistrate submits his report or he will be functus officio. The Queen v. Lushington, Ex parte Otto, [1894], 1 Q B, 420. As to bankruptcy of the fugitive criminal, see In re Borovsky and Wenboum Ex parte Sallaman, [1902], 2 K. B., 312 In this case it was laid down that when a fugitive criminal, arrested in England on an extradition warrant for offences committed in Belgium, became hankrupt in England pending the hearing of the charge, the property found on him at the time of the arrest vested in his trustee in hankruptev subject to this-that it might on his committal he ordered to be delivered up with him to be used as evidence of the crime at the trial, and in such case the Secretary of State in making the extradition order should stipulate for the return of the property after the trial in Releium.

Discharge of fugitive criminals committed to prison after two months.

(10) If such a warrant as is prescribed by subsection (8) is not issued and executed in the case of any fugitive criminal, who has been committed to prison under sub-section (4), within two months after such committal, the High Court may, upon application made to it on hehalf of such fugitive criminal and upon proof that reasonable notice of the intention to make such application has heen given to the Government of India nr the Local Government, as the case may he, order such criminal to be discharged, unless sufficient cause is shown to the contrary.

Power to Magistrate to issue warrant of arrest in certain cases.

4. (I) Where it appears to any Magistrate of the first class or any Magistrate specially empowered by the Local Government in this hehalf that a person within the local limits of his jurisdiction is a fugitive criminal of a Foreign State, he may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person, on such information or complaint and on such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of a warrant if the crime of which he is accused or has heen convicted had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

- (2) The Magistrate shall forthwith report the Issue of issue of a warrant under this section to the Local be reported forthwith.

 (3) A person arrested on a warrant issued under Person.
- this section shall not be detained more than two to be detained more than two to be detained months unless within that period the Magistrate education receives an order made with reference to such person education under section 3. suh-section (1).
- (4) In the case of a person arrested or detained Eall under this section the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the time heing in force relating to hail shall apply in the same manner as if such person were accused of committing in British India the crime of which he is accused or has heen convicted.

The difference in procedure when action is taken under section 3 (1) and sub-section (1) of this section is to be noticed. The ordinary procedure is that presented by section 3 (1), but as it is obvious that there must often be delay in presenting the diplomatic requisition for surrender some speeder mode of obtaining the arrest of fugitive criminals is necessary if the Act is to be effective, and this want is provided for by this sub-section.

It is to be noticed that in both cases a requisition is a necessary condition of effective proceedings. Unless an order made on a requisition under section 3 (1) is received within two months, the person arrested under this section must be discharged All that can be done under this section is to detain the prisoner as a precautionary measure while the proceedings are regularized. The Magistrate can act either on a complaint or a police-report or in the last resort in his own knowledge or suspicion, but as a rule he would act discreetly if he required a sworn statement of some kind.

The English practice as stated in Biron and Chalmers on Extradition, p 19, is to require a sworn information showing a reasonable suspicion of the crime and the guilt of the alleged offender. "This information may be based upon a letter or telegram purporting to be from a diplomatic judicial or police authority estatus—

- (1) the alleged offence;
- (2) that a warrant has been granted for the apprehension of the alleged criminal;
- (3) that his extradition will be demanded."

The Act does not require any special form of application to the Magistrate. In England the Consul or other accredited representative usually lays the information and also produces the documents on which it is founded. This is, for obvious reasons, the most satisfactory course, but in this country it must often be impossible, in which case a complaint made by a policeofficer, together with the production of the documents on which it was founded, would seem the best substitute.

The issue of a warrant under this sub-section is a matter for the discretion of the Magistrate. In The Queen v. Weil, (1882), 9 Q B D., 701, at p. 706, Jessel, M. R., said: "There must be some evidence, but very little will do as it is merely for the purpose of detaining the man."

Power of Government to refuse to issue order under section 3 when crime of political character,

- 5. (1) If the Government of India or any Local Government is of opinion that the crime of which any fugitive criminal of a Foreign State is accused or alleged to have been convicted is of a political character, it may, if it think fit, refuse to issue any order under section 3, sub-section (1).
- Power of (2) The Government of India or the Local Government may also at any time stay any proceedany person ings takea under this Chapter and direct any warrant any time. issued under this Chapter to be cancelled and the person for whose arrest such warrant has been issued to be discharged.

This section reproduces mutatis mutandis the provisions of the latter part of section 7 of The Extradition Act, 1870. If at any time before the surrender Government is satisfied that the offence is of a political character or that the requisition has in fact been made with a view to try or punish the offender for an offence of a political character then the surrender cannot be made—section 3 (1) of The Extradition 1ct, 1870.

6. The expressions "the Police Magistrate" References to and "the Secretary of State" in section 3 of the Magistrate and Extradition Act. 1870, shall be read as referring statement of respectively to the Magistrate directed to inquiro 3 of The into a case under section 3 of this Act, and to the Act, 1870. Government of India or the Local Government, as the case may be.

This special provision must be read as modifying in British India the general rule laid down by section 17 (2) of The Extradition Act. 1870

CHAPTER III.

SURRENDER OF FUGITIVE CRIMINALS IN CASE OF STATES OTHER THAN FOREIGN STATES.

Issue of warrant by Political Agents in

7. (1) Where an extradition offence has been committed or is supposed to have been committed Agents in certain cases, by a person, not being a European British subject, in the territories of any State not being a Foreign State, and such person escapes into or is in British India, and the Political Agent in or for such State issues a warrant, addressed to the District Magistrate of any district in which such person is believed to be, 1[or if such person is believed to be in any Presidency-town to the Chief Presidency Magistrate of such town. I for his arrest and delivery at a place and to a person or authority indicated in the warrant, such Magistrate shall act in pursuance of such warrant and may give directions accordingly.

Execution of such warrant.

(2) A warrant issued as mentioned in sub-section (1) shall be excented in the manner provided by the law for the time being in force with reference to the execution of warranta, and the acoused person, when arrested, shall, Ibe produced before the District Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate, as the case may be, who shall record any statement made by him, such accused person shall then, unless released in accordance with the provisions of this Act, be forwarded to the place and delivered to the person or authority indicated in the warrant.

The words included in square brackets were inscried by the Indian Extradition (Amendment) Act, 1913.

(3) The provisions of the Code of Criminal Pro-Proclama-eedure for the time being in force in relation to attachment proclamation and attachment in the case of persons persons absconding shall, with any necessary modifications, becoming apply where any warrant has been received by a

by himself.

Section 23 of The Extradition Act, 1870, saves the powers of the Crown and of the Governor General in Council to make treaties for the extradition of criminals "with Indian native States or with other Asistic States conterminous with British India."

District Magistrate [or Chief Presidency Magistrate] under this section as if the warrant had been issued

If the Government of India (assuming it to possess such power) concluded an extradition treaty with any State other than those mentioned in section 23, it would appear that such treaty would require to be ratified by an Act of Parliament or of the Indian Legislature, in order to make its provisions effective in Municipal Law, see Att.-O of Hong Kong v. Rucok-A-Sing, (1873), L. R., 5 P. C., 179.

For the purposes of this Chapter it is clear that the States to which it applies fall into two classes—

- (1) Those in which there is a Political Agent :
- (2) Those in which there is no Political Agent.

In the first class two methods are open by which the surrender of a person can be secured—

- (i) By a warrant of a Political Agent under section 7 (1) where the offence is an extradition offence.
- (ii) By a requisition of the State through a Political Agent under section 9 whether the offence is or is not an extradition offence

In the second class the only course open is by requisition under section 9.

The words in square brackets were inserted by sub-section (3) of section 2 of the Indian Extradition (Amendment) Act. 1919

The procedure laid down by this Chapter is also subject to modification according as the State has or has not a treaty. Section 18 provides that nothing in this Chapter is to derogate from the provisions of any treaty and the treaty procedure in such a case is to modify the Act.

"Extradition Offence." See definition in section 2 (b) and the First Schedule.

Among the offenees specified in the First Schedule is piracy by the law of nations. This, according to Halsbury, "The Laws of England" Vol 9, p. 523, "consists in destroying, attacking or taking a ship, or taking any part of its tackle or eargo, from the owners on the bigh seas, or within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty, by acts of violence or by putting in fear, and by a body of men acting without the authorisation of any State or politically organized society." For a full discussion of the meaning, see Hall's International Law (7th edition, 1917), page 267

If the offence is mentioned in the Schedule but not in the trucy, then there seems no doubt that surrender can be granted. As a matter of comity any party to an extradition treaty may, in the absence of stipulated prohibition, render greater assistance than the treaty requires. On the other hand, if the treaty prohibits extradition for offences not specified therein, such a probabition overrides the provisions of the Schedule by virtue of section 18.

Where a warrant was received under section 7 (1) from the Resident in Hyderabad alleging the offence of cheating, an offence which is included in the Schedule to this Act but not in the treaty with Hyderahad, it was held that the warrant was validly issued. "..... the offence of cheating is an extradition offence so far as British India is concerned, notwithstanding its omission from Article IV of the treaty. Whether it is an extradition offence so far as the Hyderabad State is concerned, I really do not know, and for the purposes of this case it is quite immaterial to consider." Per Heaton, J., in In re Murlidhar Haggrandias, I. L. R., 43 Bom., 310, at p. 320.

The converse case of an offence included in the treaty but not in the Schedule was decided in Jaipal Bhagat v. King Emperor, I. L. R., 1 Pat., 57, and is referred to in the notes on section 12.

"Escapes into or is." For a decision on section 9 of the repealed Extradition Act, 1879, see Empress v. Magunlal, I. L. R., 6 Bom, 622 The language of the present Act appears to clear the point then arcued

Prior to the amendment made by the Indian Extradition (Amendment) Act, 1913, there was some doubt whether "District Magnitrate" included a Chief Presidency Magnitrate. In a case which came before the Calcutta High Court (Balthwar r. Emperor, I L. R., 33 Cal., 1032), though the point was not directly raised, no objection was apparently taken to a warrant issued under section 7 to a Chief Presidency Magnitrate, but the matter is now made clear.

"Political Agent". Section 3 (40) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, defines "Political Agent" to include-

- "(a) the principal officer representing the Government in any territory or place beyond the limits of British India, and
 - (b) any officer of the Government of India or of any Local Government appointed by the Government of India or the Local Government to exercise all or any of the powers of a Political Agent for any place not forming part of British India under the law for the time being in force relating to foreign jurisdiction and extradition."

The Magistrate has no discretion in issuing the warrant. He cannot reliase to act on the ground that there is no primá facie case against the person to be arrested or on the ground that the Political Agent has exceeded his powers under the section. But after production of the accused before him and after recording his statement he can act as provided in section 8A.

It is to be noticed that European British subjects are excluded from the procedure provided by this section. If a European British subject commits a erime in an Indian native state and escapes into British India he ean, subject to the provisions of section 188 of the Code of Crimial Procedure, 1898, be prosecuted in British India, if the offence with which he is charged is an offence against British Indian law, whether the offence is an extradition offence or not leave the offence is an extradition offence or not Release on giving security.

8. (1) Where a Political Agent has directed by endorsement on any such warrant that the person for whose arrest it is issued may he released on executing a hond with sufficient sureties for his attendance hefore a person or authority indicated in this hehalf in the warrant at a specified time and place, the Magistrate to whom the warrant is addressed shall on such security heing given release such person from custody.

Magistrate to retain bond.

(2) Where security is taken under this section, the Magistrate shall certify the fact to the Political Agent who issued the warrant, and shall retain the Re-arrest in case of default.

(3) If the person bound by any such bond does not appear at the time and place specified, the Magistrate may, on being satisfied as to his default, issue a warrant directing that he be re-arrested and handed over to any person authorized by the Political Agent to take him into custody.

Deposit in lieu of bond, and forferture of bonds.

(4) In the case of any bond executed under this section, the Magistrate may exercise the powers conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure for the time heing in force in relation to taking a deposit in lieu of the execution of a bond and with respect to the forfeiture of bonds and the discharge of sureties.

Power to report case for orders of Local

8A. Notwithstanding anything contained in section 7, sub-section (2) or in section 8, when an Government. accused person arrested in accordance with the provisions of section 7 is produced before the District .Magistrate or Chief Presidency Magistrate, as the ease may be, and the statement (if any) of such accused person has been recorded, such Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, before proceeding further report the case to the Local Government and, pending the receipt of orders on such report, may detain such accused person in custody or release him on his executing a bond with sufficient sureties for his attendance when required.

This section was inserted by the Indian Extradition (Amendment) Act, 1913. As apparently the only material that the Magistrate would have to act upon would be the statement of the accused, it would seem that this power is not to be exercised ave in special circumstances. Prior to the insertion of this section unless a warrant under section 7 was endorsed for bail under section 8, the Magistrate had no power to admit a person arrested thereunder to hall (Boltharar v. Emperor, I. L. R., 33 Cal., 1032). He now has power to do so if he reports the case to the Local Government but not otherwise.

Apart from the provisions of sections 8 and 8A the Magistrate has no power to grant bail.

" Question 4, to put it brie8y, is whether the Magistrate has power to admit an arrested person to bail apart from the provisions of sections 8 and 8A of the Act I think he has no such power The Act directs that the person, when arrested, shall, unless released in accordance with the provisions of this Act.' be forwarded to the place and delivered to the person or authority indicated in the warrant. Then by clause 1 of the same section it is provided that the Magistrate shall act in pursuance of the warrant. If he does these things it is not open to him to act under section 496 of the Criminal Procedure Code and to admit to bail otherwise than is provided in the Indian Extradition Act, and as the provisions in the Indian Extradition Act are so specific and so clear, there is in my mind no doubt that they override the provisions of section 496 of the Criminal Procedure Code and I would answer question 4 accordingly." Per Heaton, J., in In re Murlidhar Bhaguandas, L. L. R., 43 Bom. 310, at p. 321.

Requisitions by States not being Foreign States.

9. Where a requisition is made to the Government of India or to any Local Government by or on behalf of any State not heing a Foreign State, for the surrender of any person accused of having committed an offence in the territories of such State, such requisition shall (except in so far as relates to the taking of evidence to show that the offence is of a political character or is not an extradition crime) be dealt with in accordance with the procedure prescribed by section 3 for requisitions made by the Government of any Foreign State as if it were a requisition made by any such Government under that section:

Provided that, if there is a Political Agent in or for any such State, the requisition shall be made through such Political Agent.

Under section 3 (3?) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, "offence" means any act or omission made punishable by any law for the time being in force.

By section 2 (c) of this Act, "offence" includes any act wheresoever committed which would, if committed in British India, constitute an offence.

It appears, therefore, that the act in respect of which extradation is asked must be an offence by the law of both States. It is to be noticed that this section, unlike section 7, is not confined to extradition offences. The matter is left entirely to the discretion of the Government to decide whether extradition should be granted in respect of an offence. It is further to be noticed that the section applies to "nny person" and differs from section 7 in not excluding European British subjects. This section is general as regards States not being Foreign States as defined in the Act. In the case of States not being Foreign States where there is a Political Agent it provides an alternative procedure to that provided by section 7. In the case of other non-Foreign States it Provides the only method of securing surrender.

If there is a treaty, the treaty provisions must be observed. If there is no treaty, then the question of surrender or nonsurrender is purely a question for the Government.

If there are treaty provisions prohibiting surrender, then no surrender can be made [The Queen e Widson, (1877), 3 Q. B. D., 42], but there is nothing to prevent the surrender of persons in cases not provided for by treaty. "Bot there is no such prohibition in the Treaty, and therefore section 9 does not in any way derogate from the provision- of the Treaty. The Act practically enhances the power of the Nepal Government to requisition the authorities in British territories to arrest and deliver fugitive offenders of their territory." Per Junal Prisad, J., in Jaipal Bhoart e, King Empror (I. R., I. Pat. 57, at p. 63)

The only thing that the Magistrate can inquire into is whether the effecce is an offence if committed within British India and whether there is primā facic ground for beheving that the person arrested committed the offence

No limit other than the condition supposed by section 11 is placed on the discretion of Government to surrender, but it is fairly clear that regard would be had to the general principles of extradition law. Thus probably a British subject would not be surrendered to so independent Assatic power and, in the absence of treaty stipulation, even the surrender of a subject of the requisitioning power would be a matter of great caution.

"Political offenders" As is pointed out in Biron and Chalmers' Law of Extradition, p. 10, the refusal to surrender political offenders has been part of the law of extradition from the earliest times, of the treaty provision on this subject there cited from the treaty between Egypt and the Hittites, B. C. 1327, and the refusal of Admetus, King of the Molossi, to surrender Themistocles. This restriction certainly seems a limitation which Government might impose on itself to exercising its powers under this section.

10. (1) If it appears to any Magistrate of the Power to first class or any Magistrate empowered by the Local Magistrates Covernment in this behalf that a person within the screet in cerolocal limits of his jurisdiction is accused or suspected tain cares of having committed an offence in any State not being a Foreign State and that such person may lawfully he surrendered to such State, or that a warrant may be issued for his arrest under section 7, the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, issue a warrant for the arrest of such person on such information or complaint and on such evidence as would, in his opinion, justify the issue of a warrant if the offence had been committed within the local limits of his jurisdiction.

Issue of warrant to be reported forthwith.

(2) The Magistrate shall forthwith report the issue of a warrant under this section, if the offence appears or is alleged to have been committed in the territories of a State for which there is a Political Agent, to such Political Agent and in other cases to the Local Government.

Limit of time of of person arrested.

- (3) A person arrested on a warrant issued under this section shall not, without the special sanction of the Local Government, he detained more than two months, unless within such period the Magistrate receives an order made with reference to such person in accordance with the procedure prescribed by section 9, or a warrant for the arrest of such person under section 7.
 - (4) In the case of a person arrested or detained under this section, the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure for the time being in force relating to bail shall apply in the same manner as if such person were accused of committing in British India the offence with which he is charged.

The following conditions must be satisfied before the Magistrate can act-

(1) the person must be within the Magistrate's local jurusdiction :

(2) he must be accused or suspected all having committed an offence in a non-Foreign State;

(3) the Magistrate must be of opinion that such person may be lawfully surrendered to such State; or

(i) that a warrant may be issued for his arrest under section 7.

The question whether when these conditions are satisfied a warrant should be issued or not is a matter for the discretion of the Magistrate—see notes on section 1 (1) supra.

"Lawfully surrendered." These words are not very easy to interpret. It might perhaps be argued that as no aurrender under section 9 can be made till a requisition has been received and an order made thereon, no warrant can be issued unless the Magistrate knows that such a requisition has been made, but this appears to be too narrow a view to adopt as it is calculated to defeat the objects of the section. The contrary view moreover is supported by the wording of sub-section (3) of this section which refers to the determination of the detention if an order under section 9 is not received within a specified period. Having regard to the context all that it would appear necessary for the Magistrate to satisfy himself is that the person is one who might be legally surrendered if a requisition for surrender were duly made. A narrower interpretation has lowever been placed on the not dissimilar language giving lowers of arrest to the police under section 51(1), seventhly. if the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, Subodh Chandra Roy Thoughty v. Emperor, I. L. R., 52 Cal., 319.

"Warrant under section 7."

A warrant may be issued under section 7-

(1) if there is a Political Agent in or for the State ;

(2) if the offence is an extradition offence :

(3) if the person whose arrest is contemplated is not a European British subject.

And subject to the conditions imposed in this respect by the les made by the Governor General in Council which are produced in the note to section 22, see page 63 post.

As to arrest without warrant it was held in In re Mukund, L. B. 19 Bom., 72, that the arrest without warrant of a person arged with having committed an offence in a Native State was gal. This case was decided in 1894 before the arrest parts. section 54, secentially, of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, which specifically provides for such an arrest in the circumstances specified therein, so the case in question is no longer law. See Emperor v. Huseinally Nuzally, 7 Bombay Law Reporter, 463. In this connection compare the obter dictum of Brett, L. J., in The Queen v. Wed., (1882), 9 Q. B. D., 701, at p. 706. "I donbt much whether a policeman is not justified in arresting a man without a warrant on reasonable grounds of suspicion of his having done that which would be a felony if committed in this country."

Surrender of person accused of, or under. going sentence for, offence in British India.

11. (1) A person accused of an offence committed in British India, not being the offence for which his surrender is asked, or undergoing sentence under any conviction in British India, shall not be surrendered in compliance with a warrant issued by a Political Agent under section 7 or a requisition made by or on behalf of any State not being a Foreign State under section 9, except on the condition that such person be re-surrendered to the Government of India or the Local Government, as the case may be, on the termination of his trial for the offence for which his surrender has been asked:

Provided that no such condition shall be deemed to prevent or postpone the execution of a sentence of death lawfully passed.

Suspension of sentence on surrender.

(2) On the surrender of a person undergoing sentence under a conviction in British India, his sentence shall be deemed to be suspended until the date of his re-surrender, when it shall revive and have effect for the portion thereof which was unexpired at the time of his surrender.

Compare section 3 (3) of The Extradition Act, 1870, with sub-section (1) of this section and observe the differences between the provisions. It would seem that a person charged ar imprisoned under the security sections of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, would not come within the purview of this section. Jhoja Singh v. Queen Empress, I. L. R., 23 Cal., 493.

12. The provisions of this Chapter with reference Application to accused persons shall, with any necessary modifica-connected tions, apply to the case of a person who, having been persons, convicted of an oftence in the territories of any State not being a Foreign State, has escaped into or is in British India before his sentence has expired.

The effect of this section is practically the same as that which is secured in The Extradition Act, 1870, by the definition of " increive criminal" in that Act, except that in proceedings under section 9 of the Indian Act it is not necessary that the person whose surrender is demanded should have been convicted of an extradition offence In the ease of Jarpal Bhagat v. King Emperor, I. L. R. 1 Pat , 57, a warrant was issued by the British Envoy at Nepal for the prest of n Nepalese subject "necused of phseonding from pul." The offence for which the necessed had been convicted was the offence of murder. It was held that section 7 noplies only to extradition offences and that, as pheconding from pail was not mentioned in the Schedule to the Act, the necused could not be extradited on proceedings initiated by a warrant under section 7. It is to he observed that section 12 was not referred to either in the arguments or in the decision, and with due respect it must be stated that it is difficult to reconcile the decision with this It would appear, however, that had the proceedings been initiated by n requisition under section 9, no objection would have been entertained as to their validity. It is also of interest on this point to refer to the case of Ex parte Moser. [1915], 2 K. B , 698, n case which was not mentioned either in the arguments or in the judgment in Jarpa! Bhagat's case. In Moser's case, it was held that the words "fugitive criminal convicted of an extradition crime" included a person who was convicted of an extradition crime but had escaped from prison. It was argued in this case that the words "convicted of a crime" referred to a person who has been convicted in his absence, as may happen under French law, and that "the Abetment and attempt.

13. Every person who is accused or convicted of abetting or attempting to commit any offence shall be deemed, for the purposes of this Chapter, to be accused or convicted of having committed such offence, and shall be liable to be arrested and surrendered accordingly.

This section corresponds to the provision made by section 3 of The Extradition Act, 1873.

By section 3 (1) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, "abet" with its grammatical variations and cognate expressions has the same meaning as in the Indian Penal Code. By this definition therefore the relevant sections of the Indian Penal Code are incorporated by reference Lawfulness of custody and re-taking under warrant issued under Chapter.

14. It shall be lawful for any person to whom a warrant is directed in pursuance of the provisions of this Chapter, to receive, hold in custody and convey the person mentioned in the warrant, to the place named in the warrant, and, if such person escapes out of any custody to which he may be delivered in pursuance of such warrant, he may be retaken as a person accused of an offence against the law of British India may be re-taken upon an escape.

This section reproduces the last paragraph of section 11 of The Extradition Act, 1870, and its language is more in accordance with English law than with that of India. s. 15.]

Any police-officer may arrest without warrant any person who has escaped or attempts to escape from lawful custody, see section 54 (1), fifthly, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

15. The Government of India or the Local Power of Government may, by order, stay any proceedings to stay protaken under this Chapter, and may direct any warrant discharge issued under this Chapter to be cancelled, and the cuited, person for whose arrest such warrant has been issued to be discharged.

Compare section 5 (2) of this Act.

It will he observed that there is no power similar to that conferred by section 3 (7) to refer points of law for the decision of the High Court. The question arises, what powers the High Court have in connection with orders made under this Chapter ? The point was mentioned but not apparently decided in Emperor v. Huseinally Niazally, 7 Bombay Law Reporter, 463, where Russell, J, said that "this section (i.e. section 15) ousts the jurisdiction of this Court to inquire into the propriety of the warrant, but leaves open the question of the Court's power to interfere with the Magistrate's action, if it were proved that such action was consequent upon a warrant issued by a Political Agent which was plainly illegal." In the case of Gulli Sahu v. Emperor, I L. R., 41 Cal., 400, the accused was arrested under section 10 on certain information received from the Nepal authorities and the Sub-divisional Magistrate directed his surrender. It was held that on the facts the procedure followed hy the Suh-divisional Magistrate was not according to law and the Court said: "It is true that section 15 of the Aet ousts the jurisdiction of this Court to inquire into the propriety of a warrant issued under Chapter III but, where the order of the Magistrate is sought to be justified under an authority supposed to be derived from the law but is, in fact, without jurisdiction not heing sanctioned by it, we cannot but assume that the Magistrate has acted in his general jurisdiction and, as such, his order is revisable by this Court and liable to be set aside at the instance of the party whose liberty is affected by it." In Gulli Sahu v. Emperor, I. L. R., 42 Cal., p. 793, the petitioner was the same as in the case cited above. He bad previously been released as the result of the decision in the above case. After his release n warrant was issued by the Resident in Nepal under section 7 of the Act requesting his arrest and the case was again brought hefore the High Court in revising. The Court said: "It has not been suggested that we should nr could revise what was done hy the Political Agent hat we have been asked to interfere with the proceedings of the District Magistrate in British India. But the District Magistrate's sole function was to execute the warrant and, notwithstanding his eccentric procedure and pronouncement, this in effect is what he has done and us, in so doing, he performed in accordance with his legal duty an executive nct, we have no power to interfere in the exercise of our revisional powers In cases falling under this Chapter (Chapter III) n simpler procedure is prescribed where proceedings are initiated by a Political Agent. In that case nn inquiry is directed and the determination of the Political Agent is regarded as sufficient subject to the Government'n power of interference under section 15.... An examination of the whole Act and a comparison of its provisions confirm the view that, where a warrant is issued by n Political Agent under section 7, its execution by the District Mingistrate in accordance with the Act is an executive not and the Court cannot interfere in revision with such execution." The Court, however, went on to point nut that, though it could not interfere in revision, the obsence of revisional powers did not affect its powers under section 491 nf the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. As regards this the Court said : "There is nothing in this view which in any way conflicts with the power of the Court to interfere otherwise than hy way of revision. Thus, the power of the Court to interfere under section 491 is untouched hy this decision for that is n power not created by the Extradition Act and exercisable by way of revision but vested in Presidency Courts to protect the liberty of the subject in appropriate cases whatever may he the occasion, of the deprivation of which complaint is made. If a fugitive criminal arrested under section 7 of the Indian Extradition Act considers himself aggrieved, he can invoke the action of the Government under section 15. This Court, however, has no power of revision and so the rule must be discharged." In the case of Jaipal Bhagat v. King Emperor, I. L. R., 1 Pat , 57, the accused was arrested under warrant issued by the Resident in Nepal for absconding from pail. It was held that the absconding from jail was not an extradition offence and that the arrest was therefore illegal. As regards section 15, the Court said: "No doubt section 15 of the Act empowers the Government of India and the Local Government to stay any proceedings taken under Chapter III of the Act and to direct any warrant to be cancelled and the person arrested to he discharged, but that does not necessarily oust the jurnsdiction of this Court to interfere in a case where the action under the Act has not been taken under a valid warrant." For a further discussion of the powers of any High Court to set aside by writ of habeas corpus irregular proceedings purporting to have been taken under the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, reference is invited to the notes below section 3

It is to be observed that proceedings before a Magistrate under this Chapter are proceedings in the exercise of the special jurisdiction conferred by the Act. They are no doubt " arising out of a criminal cause or matter "-see Ex parts Alice Woodhall. (1888), 20 Q. B. D., 832, R. v. Fletcher, (1876), 2 Q. B. D., 43. and The King v. Governor of Brizton Prison, Ex parte Savarkar, [1910], 2 K. B. 1056. It might, however, following the decision of Lord Mansfield in Hartley v. Hooler, (1777), 2 Cowp., 523, he possibly considered that the epecial jurisdiction set up does not constitute the Magistrate exercising jurisdiction under the Act "an inferior criminal court" for the purposes of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1893. The point does not appear to have been argued, and in this connection it may be pointed out that in The Norwich Corporation v. The Norwich Electric Tramways Co., [1906], 2 K. B., 119, the Court of Appeal laid down that where statutory provisions are made for determining a particular class of disputes the jurisdiction of the ordinary Courts in regard to such dispute is ousted. A further possible doubt is created by the fact that a High Court acting under section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, may direct further inquiry, and this, in view of the fact that such Court has no jurisdiction. under this Act. might, it is thought, create difficulties. In any event it would appear that a High Court where proceedings in the nature of a habeas corpus are available could consider the validity of a warrant, while it is possible that in the care of a Chartered High Court the question of interference under the Letters Patent and Charter Act might require to he considered.

Application of Chapter to offences committed before its commencement, 16. The provisions of this Chapter shall apply to an offence or to an extradition offence, as the case may he, committed before the passing of this Act, and to an offence in respect of which a Court of British India has concurrent jurisdiction.

Compare section 6 of The Extradition Act, 1870, and section 2 of the Act of 1873.

"Before the passing of this Act."

This retrospective effect will be defeated by express treaty provisions—see section 18, infra, and cf. In re Ashworth, (1892), 8 T. L. R., 283.

"Concurrent Jurisdiction," eg., in cases of piracy by the law of nations, or of the extra-territorial jurisdiction provided for in certain cases by the Indian Legislature in the exercise of its authority derived from special Statutes.

Section 6 of The Extradition Act, 1870, which this provision follows was inserted to defeat the decision in Tienan's case, (1861), 5 B and S, 645, in which it was held that when there was jurisdiction to try for nn offence in both countries extradition could not be demanded. The persons whose surrender was sought in this case were charged with piracy by the law of nations.

In connection with this section, the provisions of section 188 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, must be borne in mind. This section runs as follows:—

"When a Native Indian subject of Her Majesty commits an offence at any place without and beyond the limits of Britsh India, or when any British subject commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, or when a servant of the Queen (whether a British subject or not), commits an offence in the territories of any Native Prince or Chief in India, he may be dealt with in respect of such offence as if it had been committed at any place within British India at which he may be found:

Provided that, notwithstanding anything in any of the preceding sections of this Chapter, no charge as to s. 17.]

any such offence shall be inquired into in British India unless the Political Agent, if there is one for the territory in which the offence is alleged to have been committed, certifies that, in his opinion, the charge ought to be inquired into in British India; and, where there is no Political Agent, the sanction of the Local Government shall be recuired Provided, also, that any proceedings taken against any person under this section which would be a bar to subsequent proceedings against such person for the same offence if such offence had been committed in British India shall be a bar to further proceedings against him under the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, 1879, in respect of the same offence in any territory beyond the limits of British India."

This section, read with section 4 of the Indian Penal Code, regulates the extra-territorial eriminal jurisdiction conferred upon Courts in British India. The power to make laws for "Native Indian subjects" of His Majesty anywhere, and for all subjects of His Majesty and all servants of the Crown within other parts of India is conferred on the Indian Legislature by section 65 of the Government of India Act.

- 17. (1) In any proceedings under this Chapter, Receipt in exhibits and depositions (whether received or taken exhibits, in the presence of the person against whom they and other are used or not) and copies thereof, and official documents certificates of facts and judicial documents stating facts, may, if duly authenticated, be received as evidence.
 - (2) Warrants, depositions or statements on oath Authentica-which purport to have been issued, received or same taken by any Court of Justice outside British India, or copies thereof, and certificates of, or judicial documents stating the fact of, conviction before any such Court, shall be deemed duly authenticated,—

- (a) if the warrant purports to be signed by a Judge, Magistrate or officer of the State where the same was issued or acting in or for such State:
- (b) if the depositions or statements or copies thereof purport to be certified, under the hand of a Judge, Magistrate or officer of the State where the same were taken, or acting in or for such State, to be the original depositions or statements or to be true copies thereof, as the case may require:
- (c) if the certificate of, or judicial document stating the fact of, a conviction purports to be certified by a Judge, Magistrate or officer of the State where the conviction took place or acting in or for such State:
- (d) if the warrants, depositions, statements, copies, certificates and judicial documents, as the case may be, are authenticated by the oath of some witness or by the official seal of a minister of the State where the same were respectively issued, taken or given.

Definition of " warrant " (3) For the purposes of this section, "warrant" includes any judicial document authorizing the arrest of any person accused or convicted of an offence.

Sub-section (1). Compare section 14 of The Extradition Act, 1870, and section 4 of The Extradition Act, 1873.

The words in hrackets "whether received, etc.," embody the rule laid down in In re Elite Counhaye, (1872), L. R., 8 Q. B., 410. For as Blackburn, J., pointed out at p. 416: "In most European states, I believe, it is not the practice to take the depositions in the presence of the accused; at all events, the law is indifferent in the matter. I would add that it is for the Magistrate to give, what weight he thinks proper to depositions so taken."

Sub-section (2). Compare section 15 of The Extradition Act, 1870, and see the notes to section 3, supra.

Sub-section (3). Compare the definition of "warrant" in section 26 of The Extradition Act, 1870, which this sub-section reproduces. The definition was considered in R. e Ganz. (1882), 9 Q. B. D., 93, where it was held that a copy, sealed with the seal of the Department of Justice in the Hague, of the record of a certain order of a criminal court setting forth the charges against this accused and authorizing his arrest was in "warrant" within this definition.

18. Nothing in this Chapter shall derogate from Chapter In the provisions of any treaty for the extradition of freedrogate offenders, and the procedure provided by any such treaty shall be followed in any case to which it applies, and the provisions of this Act shall be modified accordingly.

This section saves the provision of any treaties (for a selection of such treaties, see Appendix C) with States with which the Chapter deals and also has the effect of incorporating any procedure which they may present

The meaning of the words 'derogate from' was considered in the case In re Muhdhar Bhaynandar, I. D. R, 43 Bom, 310. In this case the petitioner was arrested in pursuance of a warrant issued under section 7 of the Act by the Resident in Hyderabad. The offence alleged in the warrant was that of cheating which is mentioned in the Schedule to the Extradition Act but not in the Treaty with Hyderabad, and the following question was referred for the decision of the High Court by the Chief Presidency Magistrate:—

"Whether, in view of section 18 of the Indian Extradition Act, the offence of cheating is an extradition offence so far as British India and Hyderabad State are concerned, notwithstanding its omission from Article IV of the Treaty dated 8th May, 1867, between the British Government and Hyderahad State"

Hayward, J., dealing with this point said: "The provision there [section 18] is that nothing shall be held to derogate from the provisions of the Extradition Treaty, and it has been argued that it would derogate from the Treaty to add to it the offence of cheating. That argument however does not commend itself to me as a reasonable interpretation of the words used. If it had been the intention to exclude the addition of any offence, then the word 'derogate' or 'take away from 'could hardly have been used. In its place would have been substituted some such word as "modify." In the case of Jaipal Bhagat v. King Emperor, I. L R., 1 Pat., 57, at was held that the warrant which was issued under section 7 by the Resident in Nepal for the arrest of a person who had absconded from sail was illegal as the offence of escaping from prison was not an extradition offence, but a valid requisition could have issued under section 9. Dealing with the question whether section 18 of the Extradition Act would have had the effect of controlling section 9 in that event, the Court said: "Rehance is placed upon section 18 of the Indian Extradition Act to show that section 9 should he deemed to have been controlled by the Treaty inasmuch as nothing in the Act has been declared to derogate from the provisions of the Treaty for the extradition of offenders. That contention does not appear to he sound. If the Treaty prohibits extradition for offences not specified therein such prohibition overrides the provisions of the Schedule by virtue of section 18; but there is no such prohibition in the Treaty, and therefore section 9 does not in any way derogate from the provisions of the Treaty. The Act practically enhances the power of the Nepal Government to requisition the authorities in British territories to arrest and deliver fugitive offenders of their territory."

In the case of Rahamat Als v. Emperor, I. L. R., 47 Cal., 37, the provisions of section 18 were considered in connection with the Extradition Treaty of 1815 between France and England which relates to their East Indian possessions and the question was mainly whether the words "shall be delivered up" in Article IX of the Extradition Treaty of 1815 prescribed a summary procedure which should be valid instead of the procedure provided by section 9. Regarding this point Walmsley, J., said: "The ninth section however is general. It directs that a requisition from n non-Foreign State shall be dealt with in tho same manner as a requisition from a Foreign State. This direction seems to obliterate the difference between Foreign and non-Foreign States, but section 18 fays down that nothing in this Chapter shall derogate from the provisions of any Treaty for the extradition of offenders and the procedure provided by any such Treaty shall be followed in any case to which it applies and the provisions of this Act shall be modified accordingly. The question then is whether Article IX of the Treaty of 1815 is of such a nature as to exclude the East Indian possessions from the scope of section 9. It is true that the Article has none of the detail to be found in the Treaty of 1876, but that, I have no doubt, is to be explained by the fact that the two Governments did not intend the procedure to be elaborate; the words are 'shall be delivered up on the part of the British Government and 'shall be delivered on demand being made' upon the part of the French Government. I think these words clearly mean that the procedure was to be summary In my opinion, therefore, the procedure that has been adopted in the present instance is in accordance with the terms of the Treaty of 1815"

In In re Celeste Cu'lington, I L. R., 48 Cal, 323, in which Mr. Justice Buckland did not follow the decision in Rahamat Also case, the point as to what constituted a derogation from the provisions of a Treaty did not arise.

There are a number of extradition treaties with Native States in India, but, in view of the convenient procedure provided by section 7 of the Act, many Native States have by subsequent agreement agreed to abude by that procedure.

The treaty-making power of the Governor General of India in Council is expressly saved by section 23 of The Extradition Act, 1870. That power is possibly confined to treaties with Native States and Assatic States conterminous with India.

The position of two European States, vzz., France and Portugal, which bave Asiatic possessions bordering on British India, has been referred to on pages 6—3, supra.

CHAPTER IV.

RENDITION OF FUGITIVE OFFENDERS IN HIS MAJESTY'S DOWNJONS.

Application of The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881,

- 19. For the purpose of applying and catryi into effect in British India the provisions of t Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, the following provisio are hereby made:—
 - (a) the powers conferred on "Governors"

 British possessions may be exercised 1
 any Local Government:
 - (b) the powers conferred on a "Snperi Court" may be exercised by any Judge of a High Court:
 - (c) the powers conferred on a "Magistrate may be exercised by any Magistrate the first class or by any Magistra empowered by the Local Government that behalf: and
 - (d) the offences committed in British India a which the Act applies, are pirac treason and any offence punishab under the Indian Penal Code wit rigorous imprisonment for a term of twelve months or more, or with an greater punishment.

XLV of 1850.

> "Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881." Section 32 of Th Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, provides that if the legislature of British possession passes any Act or Ordinance for the purpose of carrying into effect its provisions, an Order in Council may be made declaring that such Act or Ordinance shall be recognized and given effect to throughout His Majesty's Dominions and on the high seas. An Order in Connell, dated 7th March, 1901, declares that Chapter IV shall be recognised and be given effect to throughout His Majesty's Dominions and on the high seas as if it were a part of The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881 (41 & 45 Vict., c. 69).

The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1831 (11 & 45 Viet., c. 63), provides, as regards the different parts of the dominions of the Crown a procedure for obtaining the surrender of fugitive offenders which mutatis mutantis closely resembles that provided by the Extradition Acts for the extradition of offenders from one State to another.

Part I of the Act deals with general provisions as to the return of fugitives, while Part II deals with a system of backing of warrants and applies only to "those groups of possessions to which by reason of their contiguity or otherwise, it may be applied by Order in Council under section 12."

"Groups under The Act of 1851." As pointed out on Fugitive Offenders Act, 1831, there are other statutory powers enabling the Crown to apply the Act to foreign countries in which the Crown has jurisdiction and to places over which the Crown extends its protection. When the Act has been applied to any place in accordance with the above powers, the places to which it has been applied may, for the purposes of Part II, he grouped with hay British possession.

The following Orders in Council group British India with other British possessions or other places for the purpose of Part II of the Act:

- (1) Order in Council, 1918 (No. 28, dated 2nd January, 1918, S. R. & O., 1918, Vol. I, p. 425), grouping together Entish India, Ceylon, Hong Kong, The Straits Settlements, The Federated Malay States, Johore, Kedah and Perlis, Kelantan, Trengannu, Brunei, North Borneo, and Sarawak.
- (2) The Bahrein Order in Council, 1913 (No. 891, dated 12th August, 1913, S. R. & O., 1913, p. 247), grouping together British India, Bahrein, Maskat, The Persaan Coast and Islands and all other places on the shores of The Persaan Gulf or The Gulf of Oman, and Aden.

(3) The Kuwait Order in Council, 1925 (No. 972, dated 17th March, 1925, S. R. & O., 1925, p. 445), grouping British India with Maskat, Bahrein, Kuwait, The Persian Coast and Islands, and all other places on the shores of The Persian Gull or The Gull of Oman, and Aden.

(4) The Maskat Order in Council, 1915 (No. 132, dated 3rd February, 1925, S. R. & O., 1915, Vol. I., p. 230), grouping together British India, Bahrein, Maskat, The Persian Cost and Islands and all other places on the shores of The Persian Gulf or The Gulf of Oman, and Aden.

(5) The Somaliland Order in Council, 1893 (No. 758, dated 7th October, 1899, S. R & O.—Revised—1904, "Foreign Jurisdiction," p. 173), grouping together British India, Somaliland, Aden, Zanzihar and The East Africa and Uganda Protectorates.

(6) The Zanzihar Order in Council, 1924 (No. 1401, dated 8th December, 1924, S. R. & O. 1924, p. 434), grouping together British India; Zanzihar, The Kenya Colony and Protectorate, The Tanganyika Terntory, Aden, Mauritius and all British possessions and Protectorates in Africa south of Equator. The following provision was made by Article 8 (2) of the Irish Free State (Consequential Adaptation of Enactments)

Order, 1923: "For the purposes of the Fugitive Offenders Acts, 1881 and 1915, in their application to any part of His Majestr's Dominions outside the British Islands, the Irish Free
State and the British Islands exclusive of the Irish Free State shall be treated as if they were separate parts of His Majestr's Dominions."

"Clause (d)." As regards offences committed in British India this restricts the operation of section 13 of The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881, but although it hmits the British Indian authorities, it does not limit the offences in respect of which another British possession may demand surrender. The offences may however be limited by a limitation in the Order in Council, under section 12 of the Act, and reference should always be made to this Order.

CHAPTER V.

OFFENCES COMMITTED AT SEA.

20. Where the Government of any State out-Requisition side India makes a requisition for the surrender of or surrender of a person accused of an offence committed on board offence any vessel on the high seas which comes into any sea. port of British India, the Local Government and any Magistrate having jurisdiction in such port and authorized by the Local Government in this behalf may exercise the powers conferred by this Act.

The following rules have been made regulating the procedure of Political Agents for surrender of accused persons to Native States:—

1 No. 1862-I.A., dated the 13th May, 1904 —In exercise of the powers conferred by the Indian (Foreign Jurisdiction) Order in Council, 1902, and by section 22 of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903 (XV of 1903), and in supersession of all previous rules on the same subject, the Governor General in Council is pleased, with effect from the 1st day of June, 1904, to make the following rules. namely:—

- 1. The Political Agent shall not issue a warrant under section 7 of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903 (hereinafter referred to as "the said Act"), in any case which is provided for by Treaty, if the State concerned has expressly stated that it desires to ahide by the procedure of the Treaty, nor in any case in which a requisition for surrender has heen made by or on behalf of the State under section 9 of the said Act.
- 2. The Political Agent shall not issue a warrant under acction 7 of the said Act except on a request preferred to him in writing either hy or hy the authority of the person for the time heing administering the Executive Government of the State for which he is a Political Agent, or hy any Court within such State which has been specified in this behalf hy the Governor General in Council, or hy the Governor of Madras or Bomhay in Council, as the case may be, by notification in the official Gazette.
- 3. If the accused person is a British subject, the Political Agent shall, before assuing a warrant under section 7 of the said Act, consider whether he ought not to certify the case as one suitable for trial in British India and he shall instead of issuing such a warrant, so certify the case, if he is satisfied that the interests of justice and the convenience of witnesses can be better served by the trial being held in British India.
- 4. The Political Agent shall, in all cases before issuing a warrant under section 7 of the said Act, satisfy himself, by preliminary inquiry or otherwise, that there is a primá facie case against the accused person.

² See Gazette of Indsa, 1904, Pt I, p 364.

- 5. (1) The Political Agent shall, before issuing a warrant under section 7 of the said Act, decide whether the warrant shall provide for the delivery of the accused persons:—
 - (a) to the Political Agent or to a British officer subordinate to the Political Agent with a view to his trial by the Political Agent, or
 - (b) to an authority of the State with a view to his trial by the State Courts.
- (2) Before coming to a decision, the Political Agent shall take the following matters into consideration
 - (i) the nature of the offence charged;
 - (ii) the delay and trouble involved in bringing the accured person before himself;
 - (iii) the judicial qualifications of the Courts of the State;
 - (u) whether the accused person is a British subject or not; and if he is a British (other than European British) subject, whether the Courts of the State, either by custom or hy recognition, try such British subjects surrendered to them, and
 - (e) whether the Courts of the State have, by custom or by recognition, power to inflict the punishment which may be inflicted under the Indian Penal Code for an offence similar to that with which the accused person is charged.
 - 6 Notwithstanding anything in rule 5, the Political Agent shall make the warrant provided for the delivery of the accused persons to himself (or to an officer subordinate to himself), or to an authority of the State concerned, as the case may he, if he is generally or specially instructed by the Governor General in Council to try an accused person himself or to make him over for trial to the proper Court of such State
 - 7. In the case of an accused person made over for trial to the Court of the State, the Political Agent shall satisfy himself that the accused receives a fair trial, and that the punishment inflicted on conviction is not excessive or harharous; and, if he is not so satisfied, he shall demand the restoration of the prisoner; to his custody, pending the orders of the Covernor General Council, Agent 1877.

- Accused persons arrested in British India on warrants issued under section 7 or section 9 of the said Act shall be treated, as far as possible, in the same way as persons under trial in British India.
- A person sentenced to imprisonment by a Political Agent shall, if a British subject, be conveyed to the most convenient prison under British administration, and shall there he dealt with as though he had been sentenced under the local law;

Provided always that this rule shall not be construed so as to give such person any right of appeal other than that allowed by the rules for the time heing in force for regulating appeals from the decisions of the Political Agent.

110. Nothing in these rules shall be held to apply to areas in Native States under British Jurisdiction in which the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1898) is in force

[See Gazette of India, 1904, Pt. I, p. 364]

- *No. 362-I., dated the 20th July, 1925.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 22 of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903 (XV of 1903), the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rule, namely:—
- (1) In any proceedings against any person under the provisions of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903, or of any treaty for the extradition of offenders, the Magistrate, acting in such proceedings and any police-officer authorised to arrest such person under the provisions of the said Act or of such treaty, may exercise in any place in British India in respect of any property in the possession of such person or of any other person which appears to such Magistrate or police-officer to have been the sufficet of or to he required for proof of the offence in respect of which the proceedings are heing taken, the powers respectively of a Court and of an officer in charge of a police-station under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, as if such property were property the production of which is necessary for the purposes of any investigation or trial nuder the said Code hy or hefore such Court or officer; and the provisions of the said Code, so far as they can be made applicable, shall apply to any summons or warrant issued

in pursuance of this rule and to any search made under the authority of any warrant so assued and to the disposal of any property seized in any such search

- (2) Such Magistrate may send such property to the State to which such person is surrendered and shall have, in respect of any such property produced before him in such proceedings or returned by the aforesaid State, all the powers of disposal vested in a Court under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, in respect of any property produced before it during an inquiry or trial.
- 23. Notwithstanding anything in the Code of Detention Criminal Procedure, 1898, any person arrested with arrested out an order from a Magistrate and without a warrant section in pursuance of the provisions of section 54, clause seventially, of the said Code, may, under the orders of Act V, 1866 a Magistrate within the local limits of whose jurisdiction such arrest was made, be detained in the same manner and subject to the same restrictions as a person arrested on a warrant issued by such Magis-

Section 51, seventhly, of the Code of Crimmal Procedure, 1898, runs as follows:—

Serentilly,—Any person who has been concerned in, or against whom a reasonable complaint has been made or credible information has been received or a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in, any act committed at any place out of British India, which if committed in British India would have been punishable as an offence, and for which he is under any law relating to extradition or under the Fugitive Offenders Act, 1831, or otherwise, liable to be apprehended or detained in custody in British India.

"Even if all the conditions necessary to estisty the requirements of clause seventhly of section 54 of the Code of Criminal Procedure are made out, and an arrest is validly and lawfully made, the police must forthwith produce the person arrested hefore a Magistrate. . . . it is clear, to my mind, that when an arrest is made under section 54, clause seventhly, on the supposition that the person arrested is liable to apprehension under the provisions of the Indian Extradition Act, he must forthwith be produced before a Magistrate in order that the detention may conform to the provisions of section 23 of the Act. This does not appear to have been done in this case. In my judgment, therefore, the arrest was improper, and the detention unwarranted by law, and Subodh Chandra Roy Chowdhry must at once be released and discharged from his ball." PART III.

EXTRADITION TO BRITISH INDIA.

It will he necessary in the first instance to consider to what place the offender has fled from British India, and it will be convenient in this connection to follow the general classification which was adopted when dealing with extradition from British India.

2. Foreign States-that is, States to which the Extradition Acts of 1870 and 1873 apply. In the case of these States, the first thing is to consider the terms of the treaty, which must he strictly followed. The offence must be an offence within the Extradition Acts as modified in this country and one also within the particular treaty with the country to which the offender has fled. In most cases it will he necessary to consider if the offender is a subject of the State in which he has taken refuge, as many countries decline to surrender their own subjectscf. The Queen v. Wilson, (1877), 3 Q. B. D., 42, in. which, there being an article in the treaty between Switzerland and the United Kingdom providing that the subjects of neither Power should be delivered up, it was held that no order could be made for the extradition of an English subject to Switzerland. A selection of the treaties with the more important countries is given in Appendix C, but it may be noticed that in two cases only of "Foreign States" do both contracting parties engage to surrender their own subjects, viz., in the treaties with Ecuador and the United States of America.

- 3. Application for extradition must be made to Procedure. Government who will, if they consider the case should be proceeded with, enter on diplomatic action with the object of procuring surrender. The application must be supported by the following doenments:—
 - The warrant of arrest or certified copy of it, stating the offence in the terms of the treaty;
 - (2) In the case of an offender who has escaped after conviction, a certified copy of the record of the trial; and
 - (3) The other documents to support the demand for extradition. These will vary with the particular treaty which must be consulted in every case; but they should always include formal evidence of identification, and, if possible, a photograph of the offender.

It may be noticed in this connection that the requirements laid down in Articles 8 and 10 of the Anglo-German treaty are much the same as those which are specified by the treaties with the following countries:—The Argentine Republic, Bolivia, Chill, Columbia, Guatemala, Hayti, Italy, Liberia, Mexico, Monaco, the Netherlands, Pottugal, Roumania, Russia and Sweden and Norway.

It is important that all documents forwarded with the application for extradition should be prepared with great care and should be correct in form. If copies are sent, they should be authenticated by the Magistrate by whom the original record was made.

. Foreign 4. As regards non-Foreign States, it will be es.
ve States, convenient first of all to consider the case which is most usual in this country, viz., where the offender has fled into an Indian native State. In the term "Indian native State" are included the territories of any Native Prince or Chief under the suzerainty of His Majesty exercised through the Governor General of India or through any Governor or other officer subordinate to the Governor General of India," [section 3 (27) of the General Clauses Act, 1897.] Here again if a treaty exists, its provisions must be followed. But it is to be remembered that there is nothing to prevent the State concerned doing more than the treaty requires, and the question of extradition from an Indian native State in this respect eannot be treated on quite the same footing as extradition from a Foreign State owing to the position of the Government of India, as the paramount power exercising political control over these States. A selection of extradition treaties with Indian native States will he found in Appendix D. In the absence of any treaty or other arrangement, the demand for the surrender of the fugitive who has taken refuge in an Indian native State is a matter for the discretion of Government; whether Government will make the demand, or, if made, ensure its compliance, rests on considerations with which this book has little concern, hut it may be assumed that certain general principles will be observed.

- 5. The correct procedure would appear to be Procedure. to make an application to the District or Chief Presidency Magistrate stating the facts of the case and furnishing such evidence as would establish a prima facie case that the fugitive had committed the offence. Where a treaty exists limiting the class of offences for which extradition is granted, it should be made clear that the offence alleged to have been committed by the fugitive falls within the treaty and is described in such a way that it corresponds to the offence as described in the treaty.
 - 6. As regards non-Foreign States not heing Non-Foreign Indian native States the position as regards the French and Portuguese possessions has already been sufficiently described in the Chapter on Extradition from British India. As regards States which have treaties, the procedure will be regulated by treaty; and if there is no treaty the surrender can only he obtained on the ground of international comity. There have been a few cases, notably the case of the forger, Bidwell, surrendered by Spain in 1874, in which a foreign country with which England bad no extradition treaty at the time bas surrendered eriminals as an act of international comity.
 - 7. The general law dealing with the surrender Fugility of fugitive offenders between different parts of the m British dominions is, as has been said before, The Fugitive Offenders Act, 1881. As regards India this tion is sought but that the facts constitute in h India an offence of the kind specified. The strate must therefore record evidence showing the facts constitute an offence according to the of British India, and that such offence falls in section 19(d) of the Indian Extradition Act.

The rule as to proof of foreign law applies cts of the Indian legislature, and the proper mode roving that the facts constitute an offence in ish India is not by the production of the Act ed on but by skilled evidence : see The King v. Governor of Brixton Prison, Ex parte Percival, 17], 1 K. B., 696. The deposition of a judge, ocate, barrister or some official holding a post m which a knowledge of law may be presumed uld be recorded. Where a police-officer is to sent to identify the fugitive, it is very desirle that the evidence should be taken in his preice so that he may be able to give evidence as the correctness of the documents.

19. If the Magistrate is satisfiedlasue of

- (1) that the offence with which the lugitive Magistrate. is charged falls within section 19(d) of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903 :
- (2) that the fugitive has actually fled from, or is not in, British India:
- (3) that there is prima face evidence for helieving that the offence in question was committed by the fugitive ;

should issue a warrant in the form prescribed by ion 75 of the Code of Criminal Procedure 1000 or section 16 of The Fugitive Officenders Act, 1881, can be employed, but it should be borne in mind that the formal proceedings must follow as quickly as possible.

Trial of a fugitive offender brought back to British India.

13. The trial of the fugitive offender who is brought back to British India is conducted like any other criminal trial, i.e., in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. It seems that a prisoner may be tried even if the name under which he is surrendered is not his true name-Reg. v. Finkelstein and Truscovitch, (1886), 16 Cox. C. C., 107. In that case Truscovitch was received into custody from the Swedish police at Stockholm where he was in prison, having been arrested under the name of Dubois, under which name he was extradited. It was argued that the extradition warrant having been issued against a person who was named Dubois who was proved to he in existence, and it having been proved that Truscovitch was not that person, he was not properly arrested and the Court had no jurisdiction; but the Common Sergeant overruled the objection.

The first edition of this work was published after the outhreak of the Great War, and the author in his preface referred to the point whether estradition treaties were abrogated or merely suspended during the continuance of hostilities. The view which he supported was confirmed by the Treaties Article 259 of the Treaty of Versalids gross as follows.—

"Each of the Allied or Associated Powers being guided by the general principles or special provisions of the present Treaty shall notify to Germany the blatteral treaties or concentions which such Allied or Associated Power wishes to revive with Germany."

"Only those hilateral treaties and conventions which have been the subject of such a notification shall be revived between the Allied and Associated Powers and Germany; all the others are and shall remain abrogated." There are corresponding provisions in the Treatics of Saint-Germain-en-Laye (Austria) and Tranon (Hungary). In pursuance of these provisions notifications have heen issued reviving separately with Austria and with Hungary the provisions of the Treaty of the 3rd December 1873 and the Declaration of the 26th June 1901, and reviving with Germany the provisions of the Treaties of the 14th May 1872 and the 7th August 1911

The position with regard to the new States established on the shores of the Baltic as a result of the war, namely, Finland, Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania is that treaties of extradition have already been negotiated between the United Kingdom and Finland, Esthonia and Latvia (for the treaty with Finland see Appendix C, p 151). A novel provision in these treaties is that the Dominions and India are not bound by them until they signify their intention to that effect. The relevant clause in the treaty with Finland is as follows :-- "The stipulations of the present treaty shall be applicable, so far as the laws permit, to all His Britannic Majesty's dominions, except to the self-governing Dominions hereinafter named-that is to say, the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia (including for this purpose Papua and Norfolk Island), the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, the Irish Free State, and Newfoundland and India, provided always that the said stipulations shall be applicable to any of the above-named Dominions or India in respect of which notice to that effect shall have been given on hehalf of the Government of such Dominion or India by His Britannic Majesty's Representative at Helsingfors, and provided also that it shall be competent for either of the Contracting Parties to terminate separately the application of this treaty to any of the above-named Dominions or India by a notice to that effect not exceeding one year and not less than six months." The intention of India to be bound in pursuance of that provision has been published in respect of the Treaties with Finland and Latvia

The position resulting from the creation of the State of Czecho-Slovakia out of territories formerly belonging to the Empires of Germany and Austria-Hungary is that the earlier treaties between the United Kingdom and those Empires do not apply and cannot be revived between the United Kingdom and the new State It will accordingly be necessary to negotiate a fresh treaty before Czecho-Slovakia can become a Foreign State within the meaning of the definition in section 2 of the Indian Extradition Act, 1903

The position as regards the Serb-Croat-Slovene State, which respects the original State of Serbia enlarged by additions at the expense of surrounding enemies, is that the provisions of the extradition treaty between the United Kingdom and Serbia, dated the 6th December 1900 are extended to the newly acquired territories.

APPENDIX "C."

SELECTED TREATIES WITH "FOREIGN" STATES.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

Date of Treaty, December 3rd, 1873.
 Date of Order in Council, March 17th, 1874.

2. Amending Declaration, June 26th, 1901. (reproduced in loco).

Date of Order in Council, September 15th, 1902.

Article I.

The High Contracting Parties engage to deliver up to each other those persons who, being accused or convicted of a crime committed in the territory of the one Party, shall be found within the territory of the other Party under the circumstances and conditions stated in the present Treaty.

Article II.

The crimes for which the extradition is to be granted are the following :--

- 1. Murder, or attempt to murder.
- 2. Manslaughter.
- Counterfeiting or altering money, uttering or bringing into circulation counterfeit or altered money.

4. Forgery or counterfeiting, or altering or uttering what is forged or counterfeited or altered: comprehending the crimes designated in the Austrian Penal Laws or in the Hungarian Penal Laws and Customs as counterfeiting or falsification of paper money, bank notes, or other securities, forgery or falsification of other public or private documents, likewise the uttering or bringing into circulation, or wilfully using such counterfeited, forged, or falsified papers.

The definition is to be determined accordingly with the Austrian Penal Laws if the extradition shall take place from Austria, and accordingly with the Hungarian Penal Laws and Customs if the extradition shall take place from Hungary.

- 5. Embezzlement or larceny.
- 6. Obtaining money or goods by false pretences.
- 7. Crimes against hankrupter law: comprehending the content considered as frauda communited by the bankrupt in connection with the hankruptey, according with the Austrian Penal Laws if the extradition shall take place from Austria, and with the Hungarian Penal Laws if the extradition shall take place from Hungary.
- Fraud by a bailee, banker, agent, factor, trustee, or director or member or public officer of any company, made criminal by any law for the time being in force.
 - 9. Rape.
 - 10. Abduction.
 - 11. Child stealing, kidnapping, and false imprisonment.
 - 12 Burglary or house-breaking.
 - 13 Arson.
 - 14. Robbery with violence or with menaces,
 - 15. Threats by letter or otherwise with intent to extort.
 - 16. Sinking or destroying a vessel at sea, or attempting to do so
 - 17. Assaults on board a ship on the high seas, with intent to destroy life, or to do grievous bodily harm.
 - 18. Revolt, or conspiracy to revolt, by two or more persons on board a ship on the high seas, against the authority of the master.
 - 19. Perjury or subornation of perjury.
 - 20. Malicious injury to property if the offence he indictable.

The extradition is also to take place for participation in any of the aforesaid crimes, as accessory either hefore or after the fact, provided such participation be punishable by the laws of both the Contracting Parties.

In all these cases the extradition will only take place from the Austro-Hungarian States when the crimes, it committed in Austria, would, according to Austrian law, constitute a "Verbrechen," or, if committed in Hungary, would, according to the laws and customs being in force in Hungary, constitute a crime ("buntett"); the extradition from Great Britain only when the crimes, if committed in England, or within England jurisdiction, would constitute an extradition crime, as described in the Extradition Acts of 1870 and 1873.

Article III.

In no case and on no grounds whatever shall the High Contracting Parties be held to concede the extradition of their own subjects.

Article IV.

The extradition shall not take place if the person claimed on the part of the Government of the United Kingdom, or the person claimed on the part of the Government of Austria-Hungary, has already been tried and discharged or punished, or is still under trial, in the Austro-Hungarian dominions, or in the United Kingdom respectively, for the crime for which his extradition is demanded.

If the person claimed on the part of the Government of the United Kingdom, or if the person claimed on the part of the Government of Austria-Hungary, should be under examination for any other crime in the Austro-Hungarian dominions, or in the United Kingdom respectively, his extradition shall be deferred until the conclusion of the trial, and the full execution of any punishment awarded to him.

Should an individual whose extradition is demanded be at htigation, or he detained in the country on account of private obligations, his surrender shall nevertheless he made, the injured party retaining the right to prosecute his claims before the competent authority.

Article V.

The extradition shall not take place if, with respect to the crime for which it is demanded, and according to the laws of the country applied to, criminal prosecution and punishment has larsed.

Article VI.

A fugitive criminal shall not be surrendered if the offence in respect of which his surrender is demanded is one of a political character, or if he prove that the requisition for his surrender has, in fact, been made with a view to try or punish him for an offence of a political character.

Article VII.

If an individual whose extradition is demanded by either of the High Contracting Parties, in accordance with the terms of this Treaty, he also claimed by one or several other Powers on account of other crimes committed on their territory, he shall be urrendered to the Government in whose territory his gravestcrime was committed; and if his crimes are all of the same gravity, or a doubt exists as to which is the gravest, to the Government which first made amplication for his surrender.

Acticle VIII

A surrendered person shall in no case be kept in arrest or substead to examination in the State to which he has been surrendered on account of another previous erme, or any other grounds than those of his surrender, unless such person has, after his surrender had an opportunity of returning to the country whence he was surrendered, and has not made use of this opportunity, or unless he, after having returned there, re-appears in the country to which he has already heen surrendered.

This stipulation does not refer to crimes committed after surrender

Article IX.

Requisitions for surrender shall be made by the Diplomatic Agents of the High Contracting Parties

To the requisition for the surrender of an accused person there must be attached a warrant usued by the competent authorities of the State which demands extradition, and such proofs as would, according to the laws of the place where the accused was found, justify his arrest if the crime had been committed there.

If the requisition refers to a person already convicted, the eentence passed by the competent Tribunal of State demanding his surrender must be produced.

No requisition for surrender can be hased on a conviction in contumaciam.

Article X.

If the requisition for extradition he in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the competent authorities of the State applied to shall proceed to the arrest of the fugitive.

The prisoner is then to be brought before a competent Magistrate, who is to examine him and to conduct the preliminary investigation of the case, just as if the apprehension had taken place for a crime committed in the same country.

Article XI.

A fugitive criminal may, however, in urgent cases be arrested under a warrant of a Police Magistrate, Judge of the Peace, or of any other competent authority in either country, on such information or complaint, or such evidence as would, in the opinion of the person issuing the warrant, justify the issue of a warrant if the crime had heen committed or the prisoner convicted in the district in which the authority happens to be; provided, however, that he shall be discharged if, within the shortest time possible, and at the utmost within one month, a requisition for his surrender in accordance with the terms of Article_IX of this Treaty is not made by the Diplomatic Agent of the State which demands his extradition.

Article XII.

The extradition shall not take place before the expiration of fifteen days from the apprehension, and then only if the evidence be found sufficient, according to the laws of the State applied to, either to justify the committal of the prisoner for trial, in case the crime had been committed in the territory of the said State, or to prove that the prisoner is the identical person convicted by the Courts of the State which makes the requisition.

Article XIII.

In the examinations which they have to make in accordance with the foregoing stipulations, the authorities of the State applied to shall admit as entirely valid evidence the sworn depositions or statements of witnesses taken in the other State, or copies thereof, and likewise the warrants and sentences issued therein, provided such documents are signed or certified by a Judge, Magistrate, or officer of such State, and are authenticated by the oath of some witness, or by being sealed with the official seal of the Minister of Justice, or some other Minister of State.

Article XIV

If sufficient evidence for the extradition be not produced within two months from the date of the apprehension of the funitive, he shall be set at liberty.

Article XV.

All articles seized, which were in the possession of the person to he surrendered at the time of his apprehension, shall, if the competent authority of the State applied to for extradition has ordered the delivery thereof, he given up when the extradition takes place; and this delivery shall extend not only to property of the accused, and to the stolen articles, but also to everything which may serve as a proof of the crume. If the extradition cannot be earlied out in consequence of the flight or death of the individual who is claumed, the delivery of the above-mentioned objects shall take place nevertheless.

Article XVI.

Each of the Contracting Parties shall defray the expenses occasioned by the arrest within its territories, the detention, and the conveyance to its frontier, of the persons to be surrendered, in pursuance of this Treaty.

Article XVII.

The stipulations of the present Treaty shall be applicable to the Colonics and foreign possessious of Her Britannic Majesty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive eminial who has taken refuge in any of such Colonies or forcega possessions shall be made to the Governor or chief authority of such Colony or possession by the chief Consular Officer of Austria-Hungary in such Colony or possession.

Such requisitions may be disposed of, subject always, as nearly as may be, to the provisions of this Treaty, by the said

Governor or chief anthority, who, however, shall be at liberty either to grant the surrender, or to refer the matter to his Government.

Her Britannie Majesty shall, however, be at liberty to make special arrangements in the British Colonies and foreign possessions for the surrender of Anstro-Hungarian criminals who may take refuge within anch Colonies and foreign possessions, on the basis, as nearly as may be, of the provisions of the present Treaty.

The requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal from any Colony or foreign possession of Her Britannic Majesty shall be governed by the rules laid down in the preceding Articles of the present Treaty.

Article XVIII.

The present Treaty shall come into force ten days after in publication, in conformity with the forms prescribed by the laws of the High Contracting Parties. It may be terminated by either of the High Contracting Parties, but shall remain in force for six months after notice has been given for its termination.

When any person shall have been surrendered by either of the High Contracting Parties to the other, such person shall not, until he has heen restored, or had an oportunity of returning to the country from whence he was surrendered, be triable or tried for any offence committed in the other country prior to the surrender, other than the particular offence on account of which he was surrendered.

Article VII.

No accused or convicted person shall be surrendered if the offence in respect of which his surrender is demanded shall be deemed by the party upon which it is made to be a political offence, or to be an act connected with (connexe à) such an offence, or if he prove to the astisfaction of the Magistrate, or of the Court hefore which he is brought on hadeas corput, or to the Secretary of State, that the requisition for his surrender has in fact been made with a view to try or to punish him for an offence of a political character.

Article VIII.

Warrants, depositions, or statements on oath issued or taken in the dominions of either of the two High Contracting Parties and copies thereof, and certificates of or judicial documents stating the fact of conviction shall be received in evidence in proceedings in the dominions of the other, if purporting to he signed or certified by a Judge, Magistrate or officer of the country where they were issued or taken:

Provided such warrants, depositions, statements, copies, certificates, and judicial documents are authenticated by the oath or solemn affirmation of some witness, or by being sealed with the official seal of the Minister of Justice, or some other Minister of State.

Article IX.

The sumender shall not take place if, since the commusion of the acts charged, the accuration, or the conviction, exemption from prosecution or punishment, has been acquired by lapse of time, according to the laws of the country where the accused shall have taken refuge.

Article X.

If the individual claumed by one of the two High Contracting Parties in pursuance of the present Treaty should be also claimed by one or several other Powers, on account of other crimes committed upon their respective territories, his surrender shall be granted to that State whose demand is earliest in date; unless any other arrangement should he made between the Governments which have claimed him, either on account of the gravity of the crimes committed, or for any other reasons.

Article XI.

If the individual claimed should be under process, or condemned by the Courts of the country where he has taken refuge, his surrender may be deferred until he shall have heen set at hiberty in due course of law. In case he should be proceeded against or detained in such country on account of obligations contracted towards private individuals, his surrender shall, nevertheless, take place, the injured party retaining his right to prosecute his claims before the competent authority.
